

Dr. Karen Johnston

Claim

I claim as my invention a three-layered pantiliner.

This three-layered pantiliner is an improvement on the traditional pantiliner that has a thin cotton pad with plastic and adhesive attached to the underneath and is attached to women's underclothing for cleanliness. This invention has three layers attached to each other all worn at the same time. The bottom pad is topped with a slightly smaller pad that is topped with a still slightly smaller pad.

This three-layered concept enables the user to dispose of the used layer by peeling it off and discarding it, leaving two more clean layers to ensure continued cleanliness throughout the day.